

Various Views Expressed By Upperclassmen

Plan to Allow Women on Council Arouses Comment

PRESIDENTS SPEAK

Hope to Amalgamate Student Governing Bodies Expressed

With a view to finding the trend of student opinion on the question of women being admitted to the Students' Council, the Daily interviewed a number of men and women prominent in University undergraduate activities. The opinions expressed varied from one extreme to the other and with some.

The plan had apparently not been considered very seriously and from a very general angle. The women students interviewed were practically unanimous in thinking that the matter should be given thorough consideration. There was a variety of opinion coming from the men. Some had evidently given it serious thought, while others offered comments without giving any definite reason.

A member of the Students' Council in declining to make any statement, said that "obviously" the time to bring up such a subject is at the Students' Society meeting next March.

"The question that seems to be worrying the men," Isabel Alexander, president of the M.W.S.S., said, "is the likelihood of women entering the Union and taking possession. We have no such ambition because we are perfectly satisfied with the R.V.C. Besides we don't care to pay the Union as we already can take care of our finances quite easily with the present arrangements. The question has been hanging fire for a long time, and while I am only expressing my own opinion, I think I voice the sentiments of most of the women undergraduates, when they say that the question should be settled one way or the other for good."

"At the last meeting of the M.W.S.S. executive, no definite conclusion was reached. Personally, I think that in view of the action taken last year by the editorial executive of the Daily in dismissing the woman editor without her having any recourse to a governing body, some provision should be made to take care of any crisis of a similar nature that might arise in the future."

"One woman, possibly the president of the M.W.S.S., would sit on the Council. Not with the idea of trying to revolutionize things or upsetting any pet theories, but to voice the case of the women students. Women students take their place in the Players' Club, the Red and White, Deane and the Choral Society and McGill is a co-educational institution."

"Things have been carried on in a satisfactory manner for some years. (Continued on page four)

Transmitter To Be Constructed

Members of McGill Radio Association Plans for Year

There will be a meeting of the Radio Association on Tuesday, October 29th, 1929, at 5 P.M. in the Engineering Building, Room 37.

It is the object of the Club Members to build a High Power short wave Transmitter. Last year, due to lack of interest, little was done towards building a transmitter; however, it is hoped that this year more interest will be shown.

Two years ago, a low power transmitter was built, and successful two way communication was obtained between all parts of Canada, U. S. A., England and France.

Three of the Club's members hold First Class Government Wireless Operator's certificates, and are willing to give close practice to any persons interested in the great game of Amateur Radio.

Two of the Club's members own and operate short wave transmitting stations, and both have been in communication with over thirty countries, situated in five continents.

Many of the American Universities have Short Wave transmitting stations, and it is hoped that interest will be shown this year in order to enable McGill University to do the same. You don't have to be a Science man to be a member.

R-100 DISCUSSED

Dr. Eve Tells Interesting Facts About Gliders and Autogyros

The main lecture hall of the Physics Building was filled to overflowing last night as Dr. A. S. Eve delivered his second popular lecture on "The Theory of Flight."

The talk was divided into four parts: theory of flight, airships, gliders, and autogyros. Each part was illustrated profusely with interesting slides and experiments. The feature of the evening was the showing of motion pictures of the great Air Pageant of Hendon, England. This fast moving film was taken by Dr. Louis V. King.

In the first part of his lecture Dr. Eve mentioned that the Dominion Government is making great strides in aeronautical research by constructing the largest and the most up-to-date wind-tunnel in Canada. The only other one is at the University of Toronto. The Government is also going to build a "water-tunnel." This, the lecturer stated, is a stupendous advance in Canadian Aviation, as so much of the flying in this country is done in sea-planes and flying-boats.

In comparing England's progress in the construction of rigid airships with that of Germany Dr. Eve said that, at the start of the war, the latter country had twenty-five zeppelins; whereas Great Britain had none. However, he assured, England is at last coming abreast with other countries by reason of the monster airships R-100 and R-101. These, he continued, are great experiments, in that they have departed radically from the stereotyped construction. They have Diesel engines, which greatly lessen the fire hazard; they are built of stainless steel tubing instead of the usual hard duralumin; they are of different relative construction, being shorter and fatter than the usual type; the people are housed inside the hull, which greatly diminishes the air resistance.

M.W.S.A.A. Officers Get Acquainted

Modernistic Melodies are Featured at Tea in R.V.C.

M.W.S.A.A. officers and managers were entertained at a tea which was given in the R.V.C. yesterday afternoon. Miss Herriot, the Honorary Addresser of the association, assisted by Evelyn Cornell, received the guests.

"Get Together Afternoon" was the main idea of the tea, and judging from appearances this was well realized. From 4.30 p.m. until 5.30 p.m. strains of peppy jazz and the weird melody of modernistic music issued forth from the portals of the building.

Mrs. Vaughan, Warden of the R.V.C., the guest of honour, was accompanied by Miss Slack of the M.S.P.E. Among the guest managers were Isabel Holland, Helen Thompson, Doreen Harvey-Jellie, Eve Carter, Sylvine Latham, Mona Crabtree, Marian Brisbane, Mary Campbell, Laura Newman, and Dessie Kapusta. A musical program was rendered by Marjorie Hadwin and Dorothy Ward.

Opening Debate Of Year Occurs Tomorrow Night

"The Older Generation" to be Subject of Discussion

CO-EDS INVITED

Active and Successful Season Predicted for Debating Union Society

Tomorrow night in the Union will see the opening of the McGill debating season of 1929-30. The subject is "Resolved that this House has no Confidence in the Older Generation." K. S. Baker, Arts '32, last year's winner of the Freshmen Speaking Contest, will propose the motion while Edmund Colford, Arts '31, will take the lead for the negative.

After these speakers have presented their argument, the floor will be open to any member of the Society.

The subject has been chosen with a view to giving opportunities both for serious argument and for humour. A lively discussion is anticipated.

Debating this year will be eminently successful in the past. This style is the main vogue at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, where, after the first two speeches have been concluded anyone may address the house on either side of the argument.

When the argument is finished, a diversion is held as in the House of Commons.

The Freshman Speaking Contest for the Bovey Shield will be held one week from tomorrow, likely in the afternoon. This is open to all freshmen and usually is very popular with first year students.

In order to make the choice of subjects more popular the executive has placed in the Tuck Shop a book in which any member may enter his suggestions.

An active year is anticipated. Offers of debate have been received from various universities and it is expected that two very prominent members of Parliament will be able to attend the meetings of the society.

All male students are members of the Society and as such are entitled to attend and take part in the debates.

While co-eds are not members of the Society, a cordial invitation is extended to them to be present at all the debates. Special seats will be provided for the use of the visitors.

ERRATUM

Mention was made in yesterday's Daily of a speech made by W. W. Goforth before the Lion's Club in Montreal. Mr. Goforth was wrongly described as a professor at McGill. While Mr. Goforth has held that position he has not been a member of the faculty of this University for some months.

Izzy Aspler To Play At First Union Jazz Tea

News of a startling nature was given to the Daily last night by the Union House Committee, who announced that the famous "Izzy" Aspler will play for the first Jazz Tea of the season next Thursday in the Cafeteria. These Teas are held at regular intervals through the year and have in the past proved very attractive to the student body who are given a chance to sip their tea, absorb their solid nourishment and listen to soothing music at one and the same time. In fact the entertainment satisfies both the material and the æthetical.

Mr. Cordner will have a special line of edibles for the occasion and "Izzy" has promised a program of the very latest numbers so that a capacity crowd is anticipated. The proceedings are billed to start at 5 o'clock so as to accommodate all those who have lectures till that hour.

Message To Be Sent Columbia

Dr. Lomer Carries Greetings to Columbia University

LEAVES TONIGHT

McGill Librarian is Official Representative at 175th Anniversary

McGill will be officially represented at the celebration of the 175th anniversary of the founding of Columbia University by the university librarian, Dr. G. R. Lomer, who is leaving for New York tonight.

Dr. Lomer will present the following message, which has been inscribed on a suitably engraved manuscript: to Columbia University on behalf of McGill: "The chancellor, vice chancellor, governors and corporation of McGill University to the president and trustees of Columbia University send cordial greetings on the hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of their college as King's College in the Province of New York."

"They tender their sincere congratulations to the institution which has grown from a colonial school to a university of national and world service, and they express the hope that its great traditions of learning and inspiration may forever continue to light the way to future generations of students."

"In witness whereof we have caused the seal of McGill University to be hereunto attached and these presents to be signed on their behalf this first (Continued on page three)

Arts Undergrad Banquet Plans Almost Complete

Sir Arthur Currie has officially accepted the invitation of the Arts undergraduate society to be the chief speaker at their monster banquet on November 7th in Queen's Hotel. Among those of the faculty who have signified their intention of being present are Dean Ira Mackay, Dr. W. D. Woodhead, Professors Waugh and F. Clarke, Dr. A. S. Eve, and Mr. T. H. Matthews, assistant registrar.

Tickets were placed on sale last week and are selling to a certain extent but not at a rate to the entire satisfaction of the executive. Freshmen so far have been decidedly backward in turning in their three dollars, which pays for their own ticket and that of one sophomore. All others, except those second year men who as freshmen paid their cash-soph fees will pay one dollar and fifty cents in order to be present.

Max Ford, who heads the committee on entertainment is expected to supply diversion of several sorts for those who attend.

Tickets may be obtained from the following men: 4th year: Bob Galhoun, 2nd year: Almona Bourne, 2nd year: K. Baker, 1st year: W. R. Carmichael.

Conception Of Religion Is To Seek The Truth

J. W. Wise Speaks to Macca-bacan Circle and S.C.A.

JOINT MEETING

Noted Orator Stresses Spirit of Religion Rather Than Dogma

"Religion, which used to occupy a central position in the life of people, has changed to occupy a lesser position in quantity as well as in quality. As being composed of dogma and ceremony, religion has failed and failed miserably; its attitude should be of daring doubt, to seek and question the truth. Instead of being the fortress of belief religion should be the 'forum' of belief," stated James Waterman Wise, in his address on "Religion's Changing Skyline" before a combined meeting of the Macca-bacan Circle and S.C.A. held yesterday afternoon in Strathcona Hall.

The speaker, throughout the course of his remarks, made it evident that the progress of religion was due to the controversial opinions of such men as Moses, Christ, Luther, and the like. These men were not satisfied with prevailing opinion at their time and consequently, they more or less advocated a change.

Mr. Wise, a son of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, is a former student of Harvard, Cambridge and Columbia, and today is a leading orator and author. Being interested in the progress of youth, he thought it fitting to correlate in his speech the question of religion today with the opinions of youth, concerning that question.

In his opening remarks, he attempted to distinguish between religion as made up of dogma and ceremony, and the spirit of religion. Conceiving it in the former light, religion has failed, he stated, but from the latter view point, religion may be reconstructed into what religious beliefs might be, rather than attack what they are.

In the past religion occupied a central position, to-day it has changed to opposition of lesser importance in quantity and quality. "We can readily notice this," said Mr. Wise. Today religion is not what it used to be, as in the past an instrument of tremendous influence in the hands of the church or the synagogue.

In the past, it tried to regulate philosophy, law, social and human relations, but to-day, religion has changed. Science has come, and religion finds it difficult to contest each field of scientific endeavour. In order to prevail, religion must take over the agnostic viewpoint of science.

"Mr. Wise then referred to the essential attitude of religion, as being one of daring doubt, to question and seek the truth. Instead of being the fortress of beliefs and doctrines, it should be the forum of such beliefs. To-day, with a tendency to an aesthetic appreciation of the universe, religion can play a part; it also can play a part in social forms. It must take up a role of adjuster, of entering social efforts. Morality and conduct, being entirely in the hands (Continued on page three)

Economy Club Meets Tonight

Papers to be Delivered on Autocracy in Europe

The opening meeting of the Political Economy Club will take place Thursday, Oct. 31st, at 8.15 p.m., sharp, in the men's smoking room of the Arts building.

Messrs. Carl Bergholm, and H. H. Harrie will deliver the papers on "The Return to Autocracy in Europe." This will be a discussion and analysis of the post-war political situation as reflected in the increasing number of dictatorships in Europe.

The election of secretary will feature the business part of the program. Only full honour students in Economics and Political Science in their third year are eligible for the position. Students taking courses in Economics may vote.

The executives are extending a cordial welcome to all new students in Economics to attend. Dr. Leacock and other members of the department will be present. An opportunity for each one to deliver his views is afforded by the discussion which follows. Refreshments will be served.

Principal Endorses Charities Drive

Lawrence Hart, Esq., Chairman, McGill Students Society, McGill Union.

Dear Mr. Hart:— I am glad to take the opportunity which you offered me of encouraging your efforts for the Federated Charities.

The merit of the campaign is undoubted and, while I know the undergraduates never have much money to spare, I know too that any of you who are able to contribute will derive real satisfaction from the knowledge that you are helping those who are in extreme need.

Yours faithfully,
A. W. Currie,
Principal.

Federal Health Work Explained To Medicals

Work of Department of National Health is Outlined

DR. MILLAR

Director of Medical Services Urges Students to Study Narcotic Act

The widespread activities of the Department of National Health, and the responsibility that the Medical Profession bears in co-operating in its work, was the subject matter for the talk Dr. Ross Millar, Director of Medical Services for the Department, gave to an appreciative audience last night at the meeting of the Medical Undergraduates Society.

The Department, in looking after the health affairs of the Dominion, insofar as they are not purely provincial affairs, must keep its finger on a number of different activities. Under its wing are such things as emigration inspection, pure food laws, narcotics control, and the tremendous task of looking after the post war demands of the army of disabled soldiers who have a right to call for treatment from their country.

Confining his remarks to these salient features, Dr. Millar particularly stressed the obligation doctors have today in co-operating, not only with Canadian laws, but with international laws subscribed to by the League of Nations in controlling the narcotic trade.

A problem that is confronting doctors today, and will continue to confront them increasingly in the next few years, Dr. Millar brought out, is the examination and advising of war veterans who come for examination. The government looks after all troubles caused by the war, but not of those that occur in the normal life of the individual, and diagnosis is a matter that must be accurate for the sake of the Pensions Board, who meet to decide the fate of those who might come under the provisions of the Pensions Act.

Emigration and Seaports. In former days, the speaker explained, when Canada was a more unsettled country emigrants were hurried hastily over with disastrous results. At one time half the inmates of a hospital of defective were made up of emigrants who had only been in the country one or two years.

Corrective measures to this condition lead to forty doctors being sent over to the Continent to examine people and to weed out the undesirable. Today that is an important branch of the work. At each of the seaports of admittance to the country too, other doctors, re-examine all the emigrants before they (Continued on page three)

Labour Question To Be Discussed

Professor Clarke to Address Club on S. Africa Problem

"White and Black Labour in South Africa" will be the title of the address which is to be given to the Labour Club by Professor F. Clarke, head of the department of Education, tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. This meeting, the first of the year, will be held in Strathcona Hall.

The McGill Labour Club is beginning its fourth year at the university, and this meeting will be first of an interesting series arranged for the fall term.

According to custom, addresses by outside speakers and students will be alternated at these meetings.

The first student paper will be given by the new president, Philip Mathams on November 5. The subject will be "Winning an Election." Philip Mathams spent the month of May in England as organizer of the Labour Party in an eastern semi-industrial, semi-agriculture division. His experiences were numerous, and the material of the paper will be based on these experiences.

The meetings of the McGill Labour Club are open and all are invited to attend. Those wishing to become members of the club should apply to Carl Berthson, Convenor, Ed. Kirsch, Marcus, or Philip Mathams.

Other meetings will be held on November 12, December 3 and 17, for which subjects will be announced later.

CONCERNING EDITORIALS

MISINTERPRETATION of a technical term has led to a wrong construction being put upon the phrase editorial column. Last spring the Students' Council voted upon the amendment to the constitution of the Daily which gave it freedom of opinion in the editorial column, subject to certain reservations in regard to topics. After careful deliberation the amendment was passed. At their last meeting they, in executive council, interpreted the meaning to apply only to such matter that appeared on page two. They left the matter to be brought up the Students' Society Meeting in the spring.

While realising that the ultimate outcome would be the same we wish to point out to the Students' Council that the constitution of the Daily is not a part of the constitution of the Students' Society and therefore does not require to be voted upon by the student body as a whole. It was erroneous on the part of the Council to think that they were interpreting the vote of the students' meeting upon the matter. They were but interpreting a decision which they had passed themselves.

Ours is not a position of conflict with the Council, for we feel sure that after having obtained technical advice from other means they will make a full interpretation. The matter has come before the student body as a news item and is not able to be understood by all and sundry. It would be well if the students expressed their opinion on the matter of the extension of the privilege to all editorial comment. Technicians giving opinions will be gladly received.

Printed matter as it appears in a newspaper is divided into many groups. Advertising is left to the discretion of the advertising manager who rejects any which he considers to be spurious. News, and by this we mean all reports and preliminary notices, without comment, is in the hands of the night editor. Sports news, in which the writer has the opportunity to give his opinion upon the play, is in the hands of the editor in charge of sports department for the night. Feature columns are in the charge of their respective editors. The Sports Editor is responsible to the Managing Board for all sports news, and the night editor and feature editor are respectively responsible to that body also.

Editorial matter is left in the hands of specialists. The Sports Editor writes his comment and opinions upon the subject in which he specialises, as does the Editor-in-Chief upon his subject, which excludes sports comment. These people in turn are responsible to the Managing Board to follow a policy which is determined by that body. It is the expression of the Managing Board in any column that is technically called editorial. This we claim is that to which the Students' Council gave freedom. Sports editorial in that case would be the responsibility of the Managing Board and not of the Council.

KNOW MCGILL

IT IS ASSUMED that when the graduate leaves his university, whatever else he knows, he will know his Alma Mater. It is an obligation that any local alumnus will not lay aside and our advice to all newcomers to McGill, and those already fortunate enough to have here one or more years, is to learn as much as possible about his university.

The question has been asked at various times, "What is McGill?" It is not the intention of this article to attempt to give a final answer to this question but rather to indicate that McGill University is much more than what the casual sight-seer observes in passing through the campus or inspecting the several buildings within the confines of the campus.

In our opinion the university is an institution which serves the community in which it is placed. In the instance of McGill University this community includes the whole world.

The tributes from England and Australia paid to the late Dr. Etienne E. Bieler, a professor of McGill, testify to the correctness of the latter statement. Dr. Bieler was called from his post at McGill to become deputy-director of an important geophysical survey in Australia and died while carrying on this work.

Instance after instance might be given to illustrate the far-reaching influences of McGill University in countries and territory distant from the confines of the campus. At the present time another member of the physics department is on leave of absence with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition for which he is chief physicist.

Research work is being carried on in the various laboratories of the university which will have its beneficial effects on the well-being of mankind and the improvement of trade and industry the world over.

Undergraduates who make themselves familiar in some measure, at least, with the wider influences of the university on the world community will be enabled to retain proud memories of their Alma Mater long after crowded incidents of their university career have been forgotten in the press of daily life. Part of their interest in their university after graduation will arise from the thought that they once attended an institution which has played, and will continue to play, an important part in the progress of the world.

THE THEATRE

Orpheum

IN THE "Scarlet Woman" the Orpheum players give a delightful presentation this week—for adults only. The story concerns the daughter of a professor, recently deceased, who returns to her native town from New York with an adopted son. The townsfolk naturally misinterpret the situation and many amusing and enjoyable scenes result.

Miss Margaret Brayton, the leading lady, gives a very restrained portrait of the scarlet lady herself. Much of the humor is enhanced by the fact that she intends to shock her neighbours just for the fun of it. Victor Sutherland plays the role of a professor who is writing a biography of the scarlet woman's father.

Several rather rarefied characters are effectively portrayed by the Orpheum players. Miss Emily Smiley handles the part of the gossip Cassie True very capably; Frank Joyner gives an entertaining portrayal of Adam Doty, a simple carpenter; a rather despicable character in the form of Mrs. Doty is well done by Eva Edge; Arthur Jacobson lends color to the part of Felix, proprietor of the town's drugstore.

The play provides excellent entertainment, and anyone who enjoys a well acted fun-saturated little drama is recommended to see it.

Princess

"THE CARELESS AGE" at the Princess is supposed to be based on "Diversion", a play by the author of "Young Woodley", John Van Druten. The connection is at times not at all apparent, but a fair picture is the result.

The clever son of a noted London surgeon decides to seek rest at Lake Como from the labor of preparing for medical exams. While there he becomes infatuated with a striking actress who is years older than he. For want of better diversion she chums with him, but on their return to London young Hayward, who is on the verge of proposing to her, finds that she has no further desire for his company, what with so many titled personages of her own age seeking her hand. This drives him to desperation and he finally attempts to strangle her in her own apartment. She recovers however, and eventually young Hayward wins back the girl to whom he was originally betrothed.

The picture has two scenes in particular to recommend it as being decidedly naturally played. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., brings to his part a full, clear voice and a sense of dramatic values. Carmel Myers is most attractive in the role of the actress, and she portrays the character very pleasingly. Holmes Herbert as the baronet, draws a precise picture, and Loretta Young proves adequate as Hayward's fiancée. Other players are Wilfred Noy, Kenneth Thomson, and Doris Lloyd.

There is also a most amusing cartoon of Krazy Kat in "Port Whines".

Gayety

Heading the east of the "Jaffin Theatre" company at the Gayety this week is Joe Van, who is not only the pivotal point in most of the laughs, but shows unusual ability with the cornet. Then there is the diminutive and comical Less Dunn, and assisting him is Art Gilson; Jack Balro, possessed of an unusually good voice, and Don Proctor, a dancer of entertainment. The ladies contribute their share through the medium of the dancing chorus.

There are some very funny scenes, but perhaps nothing appealed more to the audience than the calling up of the general manager of the local telephone company at three in the morning. The manager, by the way, had only a party line. "I just wanted to let you know how it feels to be called in the night by a wrong number," says the voice at the other end of the line.

CONSTITUTION OF THE McGill League Of Nations Club

Note. The Constitution here printed was adopted at the special organization meeting of the League of Nations Club on Oct. 29, 1929. The membership is now limited to twenty-five, and in order to fill up the list, applications will be received by the Secretary, Carl Bergthorn, at 4123 Dorchester St. West, Apartment 14. These applications will be voted on at a meeting for private business this Friday. The Club expects to have a very interesting year. Subjects discussed at the Club deal with all branches of international affairs.

Article 1.—This Society shall be known as the McGill League of Nations Club.

Article 2.—The object of the Club shall be to hold discussions on matters of international import.

Article 3.—The members of the Club shall at no time exceed twenty-five in number.

Article 4.—Those eligible for membership shall be:

(1)—The Undergraduates of McGill University and affiliated colleges.

(2)—Students in the graduate school.

Article 5.—New members may be admitted at any meeting of the Club by a majority vote of those present.

Article 6.—Each member shall pay an annual fee of two dollars.

Article 7.—The officers of the Club shall be: an Honorary President, a President, a Secretary and a Treasurer.

Article 8.—Members who are undergraduate students of McGill University and affiliated colleges and members of the graduate school shall alone be eligible for office in the Club, with the exception of the office of Honorary President.

Article 9.—The officers shall be elected at the last meeting of the Club in each year.

Article 10.—The officers shall hold office until the last meeting in each year.

Article 11.—In the event of any office in the Club becoming vacant during the course of any year, such vacancy may be filled by a vote of the members meeting after the vacancy has occurred.

Article 12.—The President shall take the Chair at all meetings of the Club. He shall have the general direction of the affairs of the Club.

Article 13.—In the absence or inability of the President his functions shall be exercised by the Secretary.

Article 14.—The Secretary shall have charge of the records of the Club and shall conduct its correspondence.

Article 15.—The Treasurer shall collect fees and bills and shall have charge of the moneys of the Club generally. At the last meeting of each year he shall present to the Club a report of the finances of the Club for the past year.

Article 16.—The Treasurer shall account to his successor for all money received and paid by him up to the time of his leaving office.

Article 17.—The Constitution may be amended at the first and last meetings in each year, by a vote in which two-thirds of the members take part. The Constitution may be amended in like manner at ordinary meeting if notice of the amendment has been given at the last previous meeting.

Correspondence

The Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

In reply to Bluestocking's letter of Saturday, October 26th, I wish to state that her supposition of the prementioned co-ed was totally erroneous, that the assumed "borrowed black note book" which was carried was one that had been earned by two years hard work at the university. Also for Bluestocking's personal information, the statement "hasn't he just heaps and heaps of lovely hair" was sponsored by the sight of his remarkable head of hair, in comparison to the shiny baldness of other great men.

Bluestocking would also do well to quote accurately before criticising a statement in a news article.

Sincerely yours,

Red Garter.

One of the candidates for the Student Council of the University of Denver modestly states his platform in the following excerpts taken from the Denver Clarion. Other candidates for the position were also allowed to state their position upon the weighty matters with which western student politicians deal. Our nominee for the youthful eloquence award says:

To eliminate certain justifiable criticisms, I wish to state at the outset that my platform is frankly that of an idealist, but it is idealism based upon practicability; and after all, in the rush of the exceedingly mundane and practical existence which is forced upon us by this modern life, it seems to me there is still room for idealism, provided, of course, that it is based upon something more than mere fancy and has working possibilities.

I should like to see this institution of ours so thoroughly imbued with an overpowering school spirit and loyalty that each and every individual in the University could and would point

Four Years Of College

Condemning four years of college as a background for business, a New York banker of considerable note, wealth, and ability said recently through the columns of The Daily Princetonian: "The most formative period of the average college man's life is spent in a place where he acquires lazy habits of thinking. A university cannot produce in men the drive that business gives them." The author of these remarks is Floyd L. Carlisle, head of the banking firm which bears his name, president of the St. Regis Paper Company, former head of the Northeastern Power Company, and a graduate of Cornell.

It is not hard to guess the kind of life Mr. Carlisle leads. Awakening with thoughts of efficiency, he reads his mail enroute to the office, shouts his orders into a dictaphone between conferences, carries a huge mass of details in his head the better to reach million dollar decisions instantly, and by his personal example of dynamic energy instills that drive into his associates which will mean dividends for the stockholders. For recreation he probably talks shop with his associates between bridge hands or chip shots. The wonder of it is how the Princetonian reporter got the interview, and the pity of it is that by a strange warp in our civilization this is called success.

Sholale Lewis has painted the outlines of Mr. Carlisle's portrait, but it is doubtful if Babbitt's crassness can approach the absorption of the modern business tycoon in the highly competitive art of making a million. And with the dollar upon so high and revered a pedestal, we have small cause to wonder that a mere college education looms trifling in the eyes of a money magnate. Colleges, as yet, praise God, have not utterly forsaken mellow culture for that minute specialization, high-gear efficiency, and hundred per cent Rotarianism whose mastery spells the modern version of "success" and whose key letters spell "drive" and "push."

What Mr. Carlisle says anent lazy habits of thinking, while it goes but an infinitesimal distance toward justifying his condemnation of colleges, is nevertheless a fair indictment of today's college methods. In defending themselves against this charge, our colleges, with their low standards of admission, huge enrollments, "pipe" courses, and easy degrees have no leg upon which to stand. But the whole theory and value of education is not vitiated, and the day must soon come when our educators will awake to the sloth of their students and eject the impostor who sleeps instead of prays at the shrine of knowledge and culture.

Basketeers In Initial Workout

Twenty Men Attended Practice in M.H.S. Gym

VERMONT TRIPS

Majority of Veterans Back Again to Form Strong Nucleus

About twenty men greeted Coach Van Wagner at the first basketball practice held yesterday in the High School gym. With Faulkner, Young, Rice, Pelker, Small, McBreton and McLean back again, the red and white is assured of a very strong nucleus in the formation of the intercollegiate squad. Eddie Silverman, the only veteran who failed to return to the ranks of the basketeers, Silverman is now at the University of Toronto studying medicine and may be seen in action against his old teammates this winter.

Although the attendance at the initial workout was rather small it was felt that the autumn sports accounted for this. No doubt there will be a large increase in the numbers trying to make the teams before the end of the week.

There were several promising youngsters who looked as if they might make the grade. W. W. Conroy of Pittsburg who is this year registered in the Faculty of Arts at McGill has had experience both at the pivot position and on the forward line. Seltzer, Montgomery, Eskine, Willis, Moore, Ross and Lusher have all had ample experience in basketball and might come through. Only four of the veterans were out yesterday. Faulkner, Small, Rice and Gershoff passed the time in dribbling the ball around the floor.

With two teams representing McGill this year there is plenty of opportunity for newcomers to qualify on one of the two. About the middle of December the firsts will make two trips to Vermont to tackle American teams in exhibition encounters. There will be no Christmas trip this year and the Coach is anxious to get his men in the best of condition before the Vermont games. Practices will be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and in about two weeks the Coach will start weeding out the players and begin to build up his squads.

Newcomers are advised to turn out as early as possible in order to get away to a good start and get into proper condition.

are finally allowed into the country to settle.

Another feature of seaport work is the examination and fumigating of ships. It is owing to the care taken with this that Canada has not been afflicted with the Bubonic Plague, such has been witnessed in some parts of the United States. The care of sick sailors who are dumped at the ports when they fall sick is under the work of the department, funds for the task being provided by the ton-tax levied on all ships calling at the port.

Foods and Narcotics

The fact that foodstuffs are pure when bought in the grocery store is not due so much merely to the intrinsic honesty of the manufacturers, it was brought out, as to the vigilant watch maintained by the inspectors of the foods. Samples are purchased and analysed both for accurate labelling and for the purity of the ingredients.

One of the most important branches of the work is that dealing with the control of the drug traffic. "If I leave nothing more with you than this," said the speaker "if I have impressed you with the part that the doctor has in this work, I would be well satisfied." He urged each of the men present to get a copy of the Narcotic Act, and to study it.

Returned Soldiers

$53,000,000 is being spent this year on returned soldiers, said Dr. Millar. $10,000,000 is spent on pensions, and the rest goes to the support of the eleven hospitals, and other expenses concurrent in the work. At the present time there are 2,999 patients in the hospital, not counting the out-patients, and that number has decreased from the figure of 11,000, which was the number in hospitals at the time of the old Military Hospitals Commission, the forerunner of the department of Soldiers Civil Re-establishment.

It is estimated that the work of looking after these men will not be over until 1955, and the peak load will be born about 1935, so that it is a problem in which all medical men graduating for a number of years to come yet will be concerned with.

Preceding the address Gordon Copping lead the discussion of the case report that he had unearthed. Discussion was keen, but a clear diagnosis seemed impossible from the facts given in the report. The final details disclosed by the exploratory operation exposed it as a

Fencing Notes

Coach Raymond caused the perspiration to break out on more than one brow when he gave the older fencers their first work-out last Friday. It was quite evident that he meant to break them of bad habits acquired since last season. At the conclusion of the practice, he made some very complimentary remarks about the work of some of the men. It is rather unusual to hear compliments so early in the season.

Masks were assigned to all those present at the practice and there were almost enough jackets to go around. The number of fencers is so large this year that the Club will be unable to supply jackets to a few men, but these unlucky individuals will be able to borrow jackets for the tournaments, no doubt. Due to the shortage of equipment, however, it will be necessary, as stated at an earlier date, to recall jackets and masks from individuals who do not attend the practices regularly. Then, some of the men who lost out in the initial distribution will be supplied with the articles thus recovered.

Up to the present time, no definite information regarding the securing of the keys for a number of the lockers has been obtained. As soon as the manager gains possession of the keys, he will assign lockers to those individuals who have waited so long for a satisfactory place to store their equipment.

Plans for a tournament among the experienced fencers will be drawn up within the next few weeks; so it will be advisable for all the men to begin to exert themselves a little. There is no telling how much new material will be unearthed by the contest, but it is apparent that there is a good deal of latent ability in some of the newcomers.

Very few of the C.I.A.U. forms have been filled out and turned in to the manager. These forms should be ready by this afternoon if possible. There is no reason for delay and the Athletic Office is very anxious to be able to forward the applications to the Association at an early date.

About five or six men have entered the North Branch Y.M.C.A. International Fencing Tournament. Several more fencers have obtained the necessary application forms and they are reminded that the entries must be made before November eleventh.

Wrestling Notes

A dozen men turned out for the workout last night, making up by enthusiasm their lack in numbers. Norwood, former Boston Tech 147-lb grappler, showed up again and will undoubtedly prove an asset to the club.

We would like to see Randazzo turn out again.

Wrestling practice hours have been changed to Tuesday and Thursday 5-6 at the M.H.S. gym. This is only a temporary arrangement till football is over about November 15th. From that date on the Club will be permanently installed at the field house with Monday, Wednesday and Friday in vogue again.

"Love And Hate" To Be Featured

Societe Francaise to Portray Various Skits at Meeting

Franchettes are particularly invited to be present at the first meeting of the Societe Francaise which takes place on Thursday, October 31, in the R.V.C. Common Room.

Each year will present a skit, and judging by the rehearsals the entertainment promises to be excellent. The senior class is putting on a "Melodrama of Love and Hate" in the old French manner and we understand that the Freshies are going to take liberties with one of their texts and poke some fun at it.

It is hoped that as many first year girls as possible will turn out to support their classmates, in their debut at the Societe. Prizes will be awarded to the best skits of the afternoon and as to customary, tea will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

day of October in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-nine.

"A. W. Currie, Registrar."

"J. A. Nicholson, Registrar."

The University, which is situated on Morningside Heights in the very heart of the city of New York, is one of the oldest and most important of the higher institutions of learning in the U.S.A. Its interesting history is quite in keeping with its venerable age.

Columbia College was founded as Kings College in 1754 and was opened under the presidency of Dr. Samuel Johnson, with a class of eight students. In later years schools of Medicine, Law and other departments were founded. During the Revolutionary War the buildings were used for military purposes and on account of this, activities were suspended.

The corporate title was changed to "The Trustees of Columbia University in the City of New York" by order of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, in 1912.

Columbia holds the distinction of having one of the largest enrolment of students of any university, and students from all parts of the world have made this institution their Alma Mater.

Motion Pictures Feature Lecture

resistance of the huge ships; and besides many other improvements, there is a smoking room. The latter innovation, said Dr. Eve, is an outcome of a typical British trait.

The popular lecturer confessed that gliding was a subject dear to his heart. He stated that it was not as dangerous as Canadian Rugby, and that it is perhaps the greatest sport in existence. An interesting story was told of how a German jet glider became enveloped in a great thunder-storm, and how, after swiftly attaining a height of over 4000 feet he maneuvered his machine ahead of the storm for a distance of forty miles. The Germans are the undisputed leaders in the glider field, remarked Dr. Eve. The park slide was mentioned as being an excellent place for glider flights, due chiefly to the fact that this slope of the mountain faces the prevailing wind.

The speaker then showed a startling experiment illustrating the drag of non-streamlined bodies in a current of water. The entire phenomenon was ingeniously thrown onto the screen; and the intricate movements of the fluid were revealed to the admiring audience. Another experiment was shown to illustrate the principle of the autogyro.

Dr. King's motion pictures were then put on the screen. They dealt chiefly with the famous "tailless aeroplane" and the autogyro. The former resembles an enormous bat. Among the best features of the film was a Royal Air Force Squadron; which executed some of the finest formation flying ever seen.

Following this most successful lecture, a meeting of the student committee of the McGill Light Aeroplane Club was held. It was decided, among other things of importance, that the election of officers for the coming season be held at the close of the next lecture, which will be by Dr. D. A. Keys on the subject of Instruments.

Soccer Gossip

By Hat Trick

With the match in Springfield against the Y.M.C.A. College, the Seniors ended a highly successful American trip. Although they won only one game out of the three that they played south of the line, there can be no doubt as to the success of the tour, as the boys got a good deal of experience, and certainly benefited from the encounters with the American teams. The boys played very well in the States, but were always up against much heavier aggregations, who played a vigorous game. They won their first match in West Point, and lost the next two against Yale and Springfield, and have found that three matches in one week against teams of the calibre of the American Eleven, has been rather a strenuous effort.

But a little light training throughout this week and the boys will be in the pink, and they will certainly have to be in some condition for their match in Toronto next week against Varsity, for there they will be faced with the very large order of scoring at least six goals against the Blues, without having more than two points scored against them, if they are still to be in the running for the Intercollegiate title. If they are to gain the championship, they must win by a 6-1 or a 6-0 score. If they do not score 6 goals at least, they lose the title which has been held by McGill for the last five years, and either Varsity or R.M.C. will succeed to it, according to the number of goals that Varsity scores, if any. Therefore the lads will have to pull their socks up and get set for a strenuous match in the Queen City on Saturday next.

There will be an interfaculty match at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when Arts-Commerce hook up against the Theologs. Both teams are asked to turn out early enough so as to be able to kick off at 4 o'clock sharp. The Seniors who are not playing for either of these two teams are also asked to turn out, for light practice in preparation for the Varsity match next week.

The following are asked to turn out for Art-Commerce: Carter; Harkness and Henry; Owen, Smart and Estall; Crabtree, Watson, Watt, Altner, Janikun; Mannion and Swartzbard, Barclay.

We nominate for the Hall of Fame, Jack Campbell who is always on hand when a referee is most urgently needed, and a "Friend in need is a friend indeed."

On Thursday there will be a practice match between the First team and the Reserves, as both teams will be playing on Saturday, the Seniors away and the Seconds at home. A full turnout is essential.

were ahead. Wheat competition for instance, is becoming severe. In September Argentina shipped into Great Britain 340,000 tons of grain, displacing an equal amount of Canadian wheat, more than ten times the quantity in the same period last year.

Mr. Gwynne then went on to say that a greater potential rival, Russia, though still suffering from ridiculous political systems and an impossible economic one, was destined to return to the cultivation of the land and the sale of her products on the same lines of ordinary commerce, opened to the Old Country a great field as great as that of the Prairie of Canada at much cheaper cost of production and transportation.

The obvious solution to these problems was the establishment of "an organization manned by business men and equipped with ample funds to develop this great Imperial estate of ours so as to set the channels of trade so that nothing in the future

Historical Club To Award Prizes

Hope to Increase Scholarship Fund by Contributions

A note of novelty will be added to the first meeting of The McGill Historical Club tonight by the presentation to B. Roston, Arts II, of the McGill Historical Club Prize, which is being awarded for the first time. This prize represents the interest on the capital sum of the Club's scholarship fund, which this year's executive hope to materially increase by contributions from members and friends.

Tonight's meeting will take place at the residence of Professor Waugh, 1541 Mackay Street, and is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

The papers to be read, as is very fitting, will deal with medieval subjects. G. D. Thompson will have for his theme, "Medieval Chivalry", and B. Collard will discourse on "The Transition from Medieval to Renaissance Art". These two subjects should give rise to some very lively and instructive discussion. How interesting it is to speculate on the origin of our present day manners, especially towards women. It may be that the tiresome custom of removing one's hat when meeting a woman or entering a building was at one time a great relief. The medieval knight with his casque of steel would never miss an excuse for removing it, and if he could persuade the ladies that it was a mark of respect so much the better.

The agenda for this first meeting also includes the election of two new members. A full turnout of old and new members is requested that the season's activities may have an encouraging start.

of the individual, can no longer be advocated by religion, but the latter may be an agency to co-operate and serve with the individual in the social order, and help him to drive at the solutions of life's problems. The speaker concluded with a statement to the effect that the spirit of the modern age was to judge things according to their own viewpoints, and not with regard to others.

Harold Lande, president of the Maccabean Circle, occupied the chair and introduced the speaker. After Mr. Wise's address the meeting was thrown open to discussion.

can disturb them. The functions of such an establishment requires no elaboration.

Mr. Gwynne concluded his address with a brilliant tribute to Canadian courtesy, which throughout his travels around the world, he had found to be beyond the power of words to appreciate.

Unknown Disease Attacks 80 Co-Eds At Baylor University

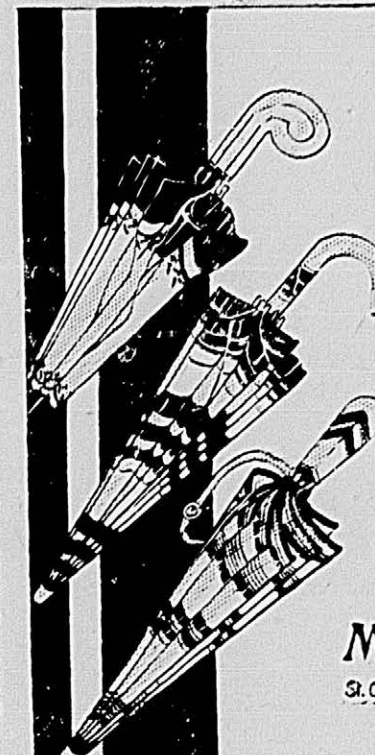

An unknown disease, accompanied by an acute attack of indigestion and puzzling the local medical authorities, has resulted in eighty co-eds of Baylor University, Waco, Texas, being taken to the hospital. While the malady is not a loss, and some of the women were only in the hospital for a short time, definite cause can be assigned to it. All possible precautions have been taken to prevent any of the cases from becoming serious.

Not Food Poison
The illness of the women of the dormitory system was found to be due to some cause other than food poisoning after a check up on the type of food eaten by those affected. The problem of tracing the cause of the sickness to some definite thing such as water, hamburgers, or milk is so complex and difficult that the investigations which have been made were unsuccessful, Dr. Lattimore said.

Throughout Waco
The illness has been noticed throughout Waco as well as in the dormitory system. There have been similar apparent epidemics of such cases in the city before, many of them more serious than the present one, according to an authority. It has not been possible to attach the blame to any one factor since the cases have not shown up at once, but have been scattered over a period since Sunday evening.

Nausea Common
Since the sickness is attended by a kind of nausea such as is experienced in food poisoning, a report was made that this was the cause of the trouble but investigation has proven the report false.

The eighty cases in the Baylor hospital at the present time are not afflicted with the unknown malady, some of them having colds and similar common ills. Mrs. Randle reported. Many of the dormitory women suffered such light attacks that it was not necessary to send them to the hospital.

All our high hopes and needs are filled and coloured with a touch that thrills to inspiration.

Issue Syllabus For Colloquia

One Lecture to be Given by Each Research Student

The complete syllabus for the "Thursday Colloquia" in Physics for the session 1929-30 was posted yesterday. Each research student in Physics gives at least one lecture in this series, dealing with a topic related to his investigations. A number of lectures is also given by members of the staff.

These lectures are open to anyone who may be interested. They are held on Thursday from 5 to 6 p.m. in Room 210, the Macdonald Physics Laboratory.

Oct. 31. "The Scattering of Light Gases," by Dr. J. Cabannes.

Nov. 7. "The Production of Homogeneous Beams of Fast Electrons," by Mr. E. E. Watson, M.Sc.

Nov. 14. "The Semi-Diurnal Statistical Mechanics and Simple Applications," (Lecture I) by Dr. C. T. Lane.

Nov. 21. "The Semi-Diurnal Statistical Mechanics and Simple Applications," (Lecture II) by Dr. C. T. Lane.

Nov. 28. "Physical problems in Forest Fire Prevention," by Prof. L. H. Nichols.

Dec. 5. "Acoustical Surveys," by Prof. H. E. Reilly.

Dec. 12. "Experimental Demonstrations," by Members of Physics Staff.

Dec. 19. "Physics of Hearing," by Prof. H. E. Reilly.

Jan. 9. "The measurement of intensity of Spectral Lines," by Mr. G. D. Langstroth, M.Sc.

Jan. 16. "The Calculation of Anomalous Zeeman effects," by Mrs. J. G. Stewart, B.A.

Jan. 23. "The Photo-Electrical Gauge," by Mr. H. G. I. Watson, M.Sc.

Jan. 30. "The distribution of Potential in Electrical Discharge Tubes," by Mr. J. Katzman, B.Sc.

Various Views Expressed By Upperclassmen

but last year's incident demonstrated the need of a women's representative. In any event the women's student activities must continue as at present for the benefit of the various societies and groups that are at present functioning.

"I would like to see a commission appointed that would look into the matter thoroughly and make a report. Due to the legal aspect involved, I suppose some law students would have to be consulted. The women are not overly anxious, but they would like at least one representative to state their viewpoint. They are willing to undertake their share of the responsibility. I only hope that the men are as anxious to go ahead with this work as I know the women students to be," concluded the M.W.S.S. president.

Munroe Bourne, President of Arts 31, said, "That in all probability the women would get only one representative, which would hardly be in proportion to the number of women students. I think that if we go on as at present with sincere co-operation between the two bodies, there should be no reason for anyone to complain."

"I believe the question should be at least studied," said Jack Smit. "The objections raised so far have been mostly a plea for a condition of status quo. No organization with any life can remain in that condition, and problems such as this, when they arise should be faced and settled. An objection has been raised that the women would not be fairly represented with one member on the Council. To my mind the important thing is the voice, not the vote; it's the chance for mutual discussion that is important."

"From my experience, I would say that the present arrangement covers the situation quite satisfactorily," was the comment made by "Dutch" Simpson, Med. 129.

"I think the plan to join together the two bodies in some way agreeable to both, is a good one," Ken Barclay, Med. 34 said, adding, "as long as the women have their interests looked

"Most Beautiful University Girl" Will Appear In 1930 Kentuckian

Lexington, Ky. — (By Exchange Service) — "Bigger, Better and Unique," that how O'Rear K. Barnes characterizes the Beauty section of the 1930 "Kentuckian." Mr. Barnes, whose right to be classified as an expert on feminine pulchritude cannot be denied, has secured the services of two internationally famous artists who will aid in the selection of the "Most Beautiful Girl in the University of Kentucky."

Heretofore it has been the policy of the "Kentuckian" to have a beauty section in which pictures of several beauties were displayed without attempting to select the "Most Beautiful." In this year's publication a different plan will be followed.

Two famous artists will select from the aspirants the one they consider the most beautiful. This "Miss Kentucky," supported by a cast of seven other exponents of the feminine loveliness, will constitute the beauty section of the 1930 "Kentuckian." There will also be a section devoted to those that for reason of limited number cannot be placed in the beauty section.

Maccabaeans To Convene Sunday

Jewish Students to Hear Laz. Philips on British Mandate

The first regular meeting of the Maccabean Circle will be held on Sunday afternoon, November third at three o'clock in the Union ballroom. The speaker of the afternoon will be Mr. Lazarus Phillips, B.A., B.C.L.

Mr. Phillips is a graduate of McGill University and is noted as one of the younger incumbents of the Bar. As a member of the law firm of Jacobs, Phillips, and Sperber, he is at present engaged as counsel for the case, which aroused such international interest last spring.

The subject of Mr. Phillips address will be "Empire politics and the British Mandate over Palestine." This topic should be of intense interest in view of the recent disturbances in Palestine.

The Maccabean Circle is the only official Jewish organization on the campus, and consequently forms the only channel by which Jewish students can satisfy any cultural cravings of a Jewish nature that they may possess. Everybody will be welcome at the meeting on Sunday November third; all freshmen and those attending the university for the first time are especially urged to be present.

after and don't infringe on the rights of the men."

The average male interviewed, was prone to offer any definite statement, and confined himself to a brief personal statement, that he didn't care to "see in the Daily." Some were very positive and the President of the Union, Tim Martin's terse reply was quite typical of a number given the reporter. "Women have their place, but it isn't here," said Tim, neglecting to say whether he meant the Union building or not.

Helen Schacter, 4th year Arts, speaking for a group of women students approached by the reporter, said "of course the girls want a say in the student government" and laughingly remarked, "you know, we women think we're quite important. Don't forget that."

Questioned about the willingness of the women students to join in student government if their fees were increased, a group of girls hesitated and then said that undoubtedly the women would have no objection to any reasonable fee.

Another student consulted was Max Garmaise, 2nd, law. He answered with a smile saying, "that the Student's Council being a business organization, if there were women on the council, there might be other things than business discussed."

"At present we have a Students' Council," Miss Ruth Dow, 2nd Med., said, "but is it really a students' council when some of the students do not have representative members on it? I think there should be women members on the council with the other executives carrying on as they do at present. A peculiar feature of McGill is that women are students of McGill University, but not of McGill College. Should the women students wish to join the National Federation of Canadian University Students, they must join as a separate entity, and so far they have not seen fit to spend their funds that way."

Mary Estall said that he was quite in accord with the plan of giving the women a place in the Student's Council and wanted to see some action on the matter this year if at all possible.

"Emphatically No!" was the comment of Campbell Gardner, manager of the Meds football team, when asked what he thought about having women students members of the Executive Council.

tion; this division will be known as the "Favorite Section."

The picture of the girl chosen as the highest type of Kentucky beauty will be given national publicity. Newspapers over the country will carry the picture of the winner in rotogravure. The Publicity Bureau of the University will assist in the distribution of the photograph. The Louisville Courier-Journal will have a full page in their rotogravure section devoted to the beauty section of the 1930 "Kentuckian."

Rules for the contest will be announced in next week's Kernel. There will be no limit to the number of contestants, each entrant must, however, present a petition signed by at least five students. Organizations planning to enter one or more girls in the competition are requested to see Mr. Barnes at once.

Barnes and his assistants are making every effort possible to assure the success of the beauty contest, and desire a large number of entrants from which to choose the one who will be known far and wide as the University of Kentucky's Most Beautiful Co-ed.

Canada's Oldest Sailor

"I think I've earned a spell in drydock," says Boatswain H. McEwen, aged 73, who sailed from Vancouver for the Orient on his last voyage before retirement, on board the Empress of Russia, recently. He has been at sea 62 years and is the oldest sailor in the employ of Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd. As a lad of 11 he shipped out of London in a sailing vessel, served in the United States Navy and entered the service of the Canadian Pacific in 1893 where he remained until his retirement. "I don't regret my days at sea," he said, "it was a hard business to learn in the old days but conditions today are as good as most trades ashore."

A COLLEGE-BOY AT CORNELL

Time was when undergraduate exuberance was relieved by class-rushes, by Strand riots, and by Hygiene lectures. Back in those remote times, a student's social status varied in direct proportion with the number of illicit trophies with which he embellished his study. Unfortunately indeed was that sophomore who could not point to a concrete-and-steel "No Parking" sign beside his desk; desolate was the fraternity-house which did not harbor a few hundred dollars worth of I.P.C. property; at one stage of this era it was necessary to chain grand pianos to the floor, lest some enterprising collegiate pilferer, back up a wagon and move it out.

But Cornell, we thought, had outgrown those little atrocious amusements. When flippers ceased to be stigmatized, it seemed that collegiate civilization, at least in Ithaca, was due for a protracted period of effete sophistication—with a fitting regard for the property-rights of municipalities and traction-companies. And for two or three years, we (and the Public Works Department) have enjoyed such a period. But in some evil moment, the Committee on Admissions acted favorably on the application of a genuine collegiate-boy, and at the instance of this talented little Jesse James, there has been a renaissance of those innocent little larcenies which supplied the zest of life in the classical collegiate era.

The latest coup of this master criminal has been the theft of the red lanterns from a Thurston Avenue construction project, and their deposit in shockingly lurid suggestion, upon porches roundabout. If the author of this amazing stroke is not apprehended immediately or persuaded to forsake his life of crime, the consequences may be disastrous. Think what may happen if one of our fragile All-Americans should fall into a man-hole; perhaps even a professor or two will suffer a fractured jaw-bone. Before we are overpowered by the horrible possibilities of these Thurston Avenue depredations, we implore this local Dick Turpin to leave off. Perhaps he can find some other good construction jobs in Syracuse—with bigger and better red lanterns.

Watches Jap Geisha Girls

U. of Washington Professor Now Touring Orient

Seattle, October, 22.—Watching Japanese chorus girls and eating Japanese dinners have been just part of the day's work for Dr. Howard Woolston, professor of zoology at the University of Washington, who is traveling in the Orient on a leave of absence.

"Geisha," we learned, "writes Woolston in a recent letter to his department, 'are like our highly paid and well trained chorus girls, usually young, always pretty and sometimes talented.'"

Formal dinners were evidently not such an enjoyable feature of Nipponese life, for, writes Woolston, "it was a beautifully served, characteristically Japanese formal dinner, and may we never have to eat another! It began with rained fish paste and hot sake."

Raw Red Fish

There followed white and red raw fish, raw eggplant, wilted cucumbers, and onions; rice, served with soy sauce and awfully dry salted fishes no longer than your finger nail; a bowl of bean in which floated sections of eel, surrounded by custard, and what would, I think, correspond to salad; native lettuce, (absolutely deadly), raw string beans and flakes of slightly salted fish; a bowl of glaucous raw shell fish, sliced, and covered with a putrid, slimy sauce more vile than anything yet smelled or tasted.

"Some of each of these was gulped whole with the aid of orange seltzer, beer, and wine. Our hosts indulged in everything, evidently great national dahitles, with enthusiasm. As for us, we nearly expired."

A DAY DREAM

We hear so much these days concerning freedom in education, scholarly initiative and honors work, that one begins to wonder why we do not have more to show for our words. It is too much to hope that some day there will arise a college which will be courageous enough to take a chance on its students? A college which will not be afraid to allow its students a little time to explore the realm of books, poetry, art, music, drama, and life. A college which will forever forsake the type of education which judges its success by the number of hours out of the twenty-four it keeps its students grinding. A college which realizes that this frantic rush of studies and activities is not producing educated men and women.

Some day, perhaps, one may be able to walk in the rain or watch a sunset without a guilty feeling that one "ought to be doing French."
